

Week In Review: Week 4, 1511

This week I made a logo for the Marina, which I feel came out well. Along with the logo I completed one of the pages for the mobile screen. I am going to admit that I have had quite a bit of trouble the last two weeks with the design. I was hoping to get some pictures of the Marina this week, but due to some unforeseen circumstances that was not possible. I hope to be able to capture the pictures during our school break next week, and update the mobile screens with the pictures. This week I got to spend some time on CodeAcademy. This time I worked on Java and HTML. I completed 40% of each, which I feel good about but I would really like to finish them. I also spent some time researching React Native which we went over in class. I really feel that React could be a great tool in Mobile Development.

Reflect and Connect: Week 4,1511

My time this week went towards my goal of better understanding and applying the design principles I have learned thus far. I have been having trouble with design and the time I spent this week I feel greatly helped me in that area. I also got to spend a little time with Java. I also unexpectedly decided to look at the HTML course and completed 40% of each course. I feel I performed well and got in more good practice. I really have enjoyed this course as it has really let me spend some time and refresh on the few skills I have learned thus far. I plan to continue updating my portfolio even when I am not attending the Portfolio courses.
